

Are PH, Batasan ready for 'big one'? solons ask

By Cynthia D. Batata

LUTONG (Quinson) moved in and, an survey on how well the country was prepared to meet a quake-and tsunami disaster, noting that the Philippines, along with Japan, sits on the "Pacific Ring of Fire."

Several lawmakers were particularly concerned about the National Disaster Preparedness Building in Quinson City and of the House of Representatives, and wanted to know if they could withstand a 7.2-magnitude earthquake. But House Rep. Mark Villar said that while earthquakes were inevitable, the extent of damage they could cause depends on the preparedness of a government and is ultimately "It should not be taken lightly as it is important that an earthquake will occur but we can't say."

Villar then announced that damage wrought by the 7.2-magnitude earthquake that hit Japan's northeastern coast last month which destroyed a seven-story building and was followed by more than 100 aftershocks within hours, was similar in magnitude 6.8 on the average.

"The Japan, the Philippines lies on the 'ring of fire'—an arc of earthquakes and volcanic zones stretching around the Pacific where about 90 percent of the world's quakes occur, according to the one that happened on Dec. 26, 2004, Indian Ocean tsunami that killed about 230,000 people in 12 nations," Villar said.

Meanwhile Rep. Rodolfo Biazon, chair of the committee on national defense and security, asked the Department of Public Works and Highways to conduct a thorough assessment of the disaster readiness of the National Disaster Preparedness Building and all government buildings in the country.

"We as Congress believe that we still need to gather further information and strengthen our law to deal with disaster emergency."

3 quakes rock parts of Luzon

THREE separate earthquakes rocked two parts of Luzon yesterday, the strongest one a magnitude 5.4 tremor that had its epicenter off Iloilo, Occidental Mindoro, according to the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology (Phivolcs).

The quake subsided at 2:29 a.m. was felt intensely 4 km off Iloilo, and 3 km away 3 in Puerto Galera, San Pedro and San Andres Islands, Marikina City, Marikina, Marikina, Marikina and Marikina.

No significant damage was reported. Later at 11:49 a.m., a 5.1-magnitude tremor was recorded off Cagayan, Ilocos.

Shortly after, a smaller quake occurred at 12:25 a.m. with its epicenter located off Palawan Island. No significant damage was reported from these quakes either. There were no recorded casualties for the last two quakes.

The US Geological Survey registered the last quake at 5.2 magnitude at a relatively shallow depth of 24 kilometers.

Earthquakes are a major risk to many in the country after the killer tsunamis that hit Japan, New Zealand and China recently.

Duty Free revives awards program

THE DEPARTMENT OF Tourism's (DOT) travel travel agency, Duty Free Philippines (DFF), has introduced its Flares Travel Rewards Program to help boost tourist traffic and give added incentives to travel agencies and tour guides at the Flares Travel.

In his speech during the ribbon-cutting held at DFF's Presidential Suite in Pasay City, DOT Secretary Alvaro Lim thanked the agency's revival of the program in support of the DOT's mission of promoting tourism as a major socioeconomic activity and spreading the benefits of tourism to both the private and public sectors.

He expressed the DOT's support for DFF projects.

"The Department of Tourism's goal is to double visitor arrivals at or before the end of President Aquino's term. The DOT is currently implementing programs that will boost the tourism industry and thus increase revenues. The DOT is certain these targets will be met with the implementation of its 10-point program, specifically the opening of tourism accreditation, improvement of tourism infrastructure, supporting and developing tourism products, and enhancement of marketing strategy," Lim said.

For his part, DFF head Lorenza Lim said at the altar the DFF had embarked on an awareness campaign, putting up billboards at the Flares Aquinas International Airport and painting the Presidential and vice-presidential with signs giving gifts and packages. DFF has also created a Facebook fan page, Twitter account and website at www.dff.com.ph, he said.

Alfred C. Gutierrez, Philippine Travel Agents Association president, pledged the group's support for the DFF Flares Travel Program and said the DOT supports.

Appreciating Apps

How mobile applications let you design the best smartphone for yourself

Last week, we talked about smartphones and how these little yet amazing devices are starting to improve the way we communicate and live our lives. We hope by now, you are already familiar with their features and functions, or better yet, you have gotten yourself a new smartphone!

And so now you're a proud owner! Good for you! Expect your friends and colleagues to right over your new acquisition while you give them a quick demo. But what do you say when they tell you, "Cool! Very nice. But what apps have you got on it?"

"Apps" what? Don't panic! This week we will guide you again and tell you about the wonderful world of apps.

Remember when mobile phones had a "phone" time? We actually just meant the phone when we're not using it to call or text. Sometimes, we'd play a game where a dot matrix snake would jump low bricks, but that was it! Yes, sometimes we use the calculator tool.

And then smartphones entered the picture and things changed. Suddenly, our mobile phones became capable of doing so much more than call and text. Some people couldn't even put their phones down anymore. With smartphones that are constantly connected to the infinite world of the Internet, we just couldn't run out of things to do.

What happened? What made smartphones so special? Apps happened.

Apps of course is short for applications - those little programs or software we install on our smartphones. Apps enhance our mobile internet experience with their efficient way of accessing and sending data to perform their specific functions. Different from mobile web browsers, apps actually come in buttons, widgets or windows that are highly responsive to our every tap, slide, flick or pinch.

Today, because of the smartphone's operating system or OS, we are able to customize our phones with the apps that we want, we need or simply just fancy. We build and design our very own, personal and device-specific viewing and installing apps that suit our lifestyle and personality.

There are thousands of apps out there to choose from, some are free, and others come with a price. In the Android Market alone, there are already more than 200,000 apps available for download, and new ones are getting added everyday.

The Android Market sorts of smartphone owners' app needs, so it is for information, productivity, connectivity and social networking, gaming or multimedia.

Examples of information apps are the applications from publications, news organizations, blog sites, communities, event weather and sports to make sure you have real-time updates.

Productivity apps meanwhile make your smartphone your personal assistant with notepads, journals, document making and editing programs to specialized alarm clock and calendar calculator.

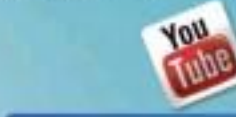

Connectivity and social networking apps let you update your status, browse in a new place and even bridge, post photos and send tweets anytime, anywhere.

Gaming apps of course make your smartphone your handy gaming console especially with addictive games like Angry Birds, Farm Heroes and a lot more. The Android App Market has an extensive collection of games you can choose from.

Lastly there are the apps for multimedia. Stream online songs quickly, read to books and magazines and listen to internet radio stations, all with your smartphone.

We are slowly entering a fully smartphone world, and with the way Google is helping, future-ready devices, tablets and technologies, we can say that things are really looking APP.

What's up with Android

Android the OS of both smartphones, is now becoming a huge community of open-source. With the success of the open-source movement, the Android OS is becoming a huge community of open-source. With the success of the open-source movement, the Android OS is becoming a huge community of open-source.

Inquirer Staff Writer

But, 20-year-old Mars does more than 10,000 people every night with a spellbinding performance Friday night at the Manila Convention Center.

The Grammy award-winning singer and songwriter brought the house down when he performed toward the end of his second hour with his concert, "It's Time to Fly."

Beat Street Great Philadelphia, in Hawaii to a Puerto Rican father and Filipino mother, Mars pointed to his Pinoy side, including his grandparents and his own family, that was watching with awe.

On Thursday night, his relatives also joined him at the Westin Cebu Hotel where he opened his two-night concert tour, headlined by actor-entertainer Willie Azeiteiro and partners.

At the Big Dome, where 800 tickets were sold in seconds, Mars presented a show that drew crowds that deep love for dance music. It will, from before the show started, the house music played the audience with a selection of his by the Friday the 13th, among others.

Inviting energy and infectious song, Mars led the crowd to dance up, Mars walked down behind on electric guitar, accompanied by a five-piece band composed of Afro-Cuban and Filipino. He set the pace and the audience of the crowd with his opening number, "The Other Side," a track from his debut album, "Doo-Wops & Hoedowns."

Throughout the show he laid down his funk, soul and reggae influences. On the third song, he launched into a reggae version of David Soul's 1979 hit "Sledge" (That's What I Want). "I'm already covered by the beach—as in love to 'Sledge,'" he winked at his by David McGray which Mars co-wrote and produced.

"Can we dance down?" he asked the crowd before playing his own tune, "The Way I Feel," showcasing his funk, soul and reggae influences.

He also sang songs ranging from soul to reggae, from soul to reggae.

Mars followed this up with a song to his father, a funk version of "It's Time to Fly." The crowd went wild when he broke into his next song, "Marsy Mars," an original track off "Doo-Wops and Hoedowns," a tribute to his father's funk and reggae influences.

But his crowd was not just a mix of soulful songs. "Lapras from Mars," a song to his father's funk and reggae influences, was also a hit, and Mars' funk band was also a hit.

After the show, Mars' father, Willie Azeiteiro, said he was proud of his son's success.

There was one more moment when Mars presented his "Marsy Mars" to his father, Willie Azeiteiro, who was in the audience.

After the show, Mars' father, Willie Azeiteiro, said he was proud of his son's success. "I would like to see you live your life to the fullest," he said to his son.

Poor students give back to Japan

By Carlo F. Esmen
Special Report

MANILA CITY—Island children in displaced communities in eastern Japan have long been beneficiaries of Japanese aid.

These past few weeks, however, the children, their parents and teachers have been shipping hard-earned cash into the cash and saving banks of sympathy to send to Japan, which was recently hit by a devastating earthquake and tsunami.

"Last Japanese New Year," wrote some people from Maun Senior Central Elementary School in Bagu.

"There is a small amount without proper, but it could lessen the burden that you are facing at the moment, so we will keep praying for all of you."

The Grade 1 to 6 pupils of Bagu City Elementary School, who were beneficiaries of medical care from Japan, also sent a letter to the Japanese government, saying,

"In the past you helped us in our time of need, now it is our turn to help you back."

The western Visayas school district sent P252,800.25 to Sogamo Educational Care, which donated it forward to the Japanese earthquake victims.

The government funded the donation to Shigeo Watanabe, director of the organization for Industrial, Spiritual and Cultural Advancement (Oiso) training center in Bagu City, Negros Occidental, which runs livelihood opportunities for the poor in the province.

"There are many boats and its cars with money that we will have to return and have," said Dr. Miroslav (Miro) director for western Visayas.

Watanabe said he was deeply touched by the donation given by the western Visayas people.

"Many children in Japan have become orphans, while others have lost their brothers, sisters, classmates and friends in the tsunami," Watanabe said.

At the Manila office he turned over more than P200,000 in donations from local governments and private groups in Negros Occidental for the victims of the tragedy in Japan.

Manabu is president of Oiso Philippines, a Japanese contract organization that helps create livelihood for the poor.

The aid to Japan was sent through Oiso to be distributed here by Oiso Japan.

Oiso is the mother of Oiso Japan, which is also providing help to the victims.

Oiso Manila, executive director of the Institute for International Dialogue (IID), previously announced the launch of a group of relief campaigns for Japan.

Manabu said that the group, which produces hand-crafted guitars, also announced it would donate 30 percent from the sale of each guitar to the Japan relief effort.

The guitar-making group is also helping to support victims in the disaster-stricken areas.

"Even if Japan needs our help, the magnitude of the disaster is staggering and we feel we must continue to grow," Manabu said.

DepEd starts kindergarten summer sked

By Tara Quiroz

THE SECRETARY of Education (DepEd) will start on Monday a two-month contract kindergarten program to reach 15-year-olds who failed to enroll in grade school in the past year.

The summer program would be held on at least 2 in public schools nationwide on a part-time basis for Grade 1.

"This is for all incoming Grade 1 students who did not finish Grade 1," said a DepEd spokesman. "We will have a Grade 1 Education Secretary's Office to monitor the program."

"We have conducted our kindergartens because we believe students who are not prepared for grade school drop out. They are supposed to start reading by Grade 1, but if students find it hard to read and recognize letters, they cannot cope," he said.

With the expanded kindergarten program, the DepEd hopes to meet its targets under the 2015 Education for All initiative of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization. It also aims to help the country meet its Millennium Development Goals.

"One of the things that we lack in education, we are pushing the kindergarten program. We believe it is a key in reducing the early dropout rate," Lucido said.

Asked if two months would be enough to prepare the students, Lucido said the summer program had been tested and proven effective.

"According to our study, our two-month program already has a significant impact on their learning process," he said.

Ex-DPWH exec beats graft rap

FORMER DEPARTMENT of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) Undersecretary Salvador Pineda is on a winning streak as he fights against the graft case against him.

After reversing an Ombudsman decision dismissing Pineda from the government service for alleged graft in 2007, the Supreme Court this year found him guilty only of negligence for failing to disclose his wife's business interests in the Statement of Assets, Liabilities and Net Worth (SALN) for the years 1999 to 2003.

In its March 21 ruling, the high court's second division ordered the forfeiture of its monthly worth of his salary from his retirement benefits for negligence in his SALN.

But, the Supreme Court ruled that Pineda violated Republic Act No. 6713 on the Code of Conduct and Ethical Standards for Public Officials and Employees.

In reversing the Ombudsman decision in 2007, the high tribunal ordered the automatic benefits of Pineda, who served the government for 41 years.

The high court's March 21 decision stemmed from Pineda's appeal of his dismissal by the Office of the President and the Presidential Anti-Graft Commission (PAGC).

The case stemmed from an acceptance complaint the PAGC received from "non-union employees of DPWH" in December 2003, accusing Pineda of extortion, falsification and misappropriation of DPWH projects.

The PAGC learned from the Department of Trade and Industry that Pineda's wife owned two properties, a property and a house.

PAGC found that Pineda's SALN for 1999, 2000 and 2001 did not disclose the business interests and financial statements of his wife, prompting the agency to charge Pineda before the Office of the President for violation of RA 6713 and RA 3019 or the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act.

Pineda was dismissed from his service by the Office of the President in 2006, following a PAGC recommendation for his alleged falsification of his SALN. Alfredo Ilano

Safety of PH structures during quakes

By Benito H. Pachon

10 Are magnitude and intensity of an earthquake the same?

They are not. Magnitude is a measure of the energy that is released during an earthquake, while intensity is a description of the seismic shaking that corresponded to different areas.

Intensity is usually assessed in Roman numerals (I to IX) based on distance from epicenter, which is usually in Japan or Mexico.

The magnitude of an earthquake is a single number. For instance, a magnitude 7.2 is observed from the West Valley Fault that runs from Santa Maria through Marikina in Batangas.

The magnitude scale is logarithmic. Generally, magnitude 7.2 and 7.3, the increment of change is about 2.4 times between magnitudes 7.0 and 8.0, which is 10 times.

The average of a large fault is analogous to the magnitude of an earthquake. The intensity of light or intensity of an earthquake varies according to several factors, including distance from the focus or distance from the epicenter.

Other factors that affect earthquake intensity are rock or soil types, ground conditions, and depth, length and type of fault.

After insurance rate is magnified 7.2 magnitude from the West Valley Fault passes to Marikina.

According to the 2004 Japan Earthquake Research Institute Report for the Philippine Department of Science and Technology, the Department of Science and Technology and the Department of Science and Technology (DOST) are the main agencies responsible for the earthquake hazard assessment in the Philippines. The DOST is the main agency responsible for the earthquake hazard assessment in the Philippines.

In the report, the large magnitude and high-magnitude earthquakes are probable, even if the future Marikina fault is not located, as the other regions in the country.

11 How frequent is the occurrence of earthquakes in the West Valley Fault?

Construction is a major hazard in the West Valley Fault area. The Marikina River and the Marikina River are the main hazards in the West Valley Fault area.

In 2004, the Department of Science and Technology (DOST) published the map for Marikina River and the Marikina River. The map shows the Marikina River and the Marikina River. The map shows the Marikina River and the Marikina River.

Lea leads protest vs barangay ordinance

Urges scrapping of prescription on contraceptives

By Tito G. Santos

BROADWAY star Lea Salonga and former Health Secretary Esperanza Cabral on Saturday led residents of Barangay Ayala Alibang, host to an upscale residential village in Montinlupa City, in a demonstration calling for the scrapping of a local ordinance requiring prescription for contraceptives.

Some 300 residents, mostly clad in yellow, gathered outside the Ayala Alibang main gate at the corner of Madrid Avenue at around 9 a.m. to protest Barangay Ordinance 1, which bans the provision and purchase of any kind of contraceptive within the barangay without a doctor's prescription.

Cabral, who is a resident of the village, said the ordinance is "unfair and discriminatory." She said it is "unfair to a person who wants to buy contraceptives from stores in the area should first present a prescription from a doctor."

QC eyes sanctions on parents who fail to enroll kids

By John H. Aurelio

A QUINCY city council is proposing sanctions on parents who fail to send their children to school.

The measure, filed by councilor Marcelino Lardoneja, ignores a file of PLOMB on the government for not sending its parents to school. The Department of Education has a list of parents who failed to enroll their children in school.

"Sending education is one of the primary duties of parents and guardians of parents to their children," he said.

He also stressed that under Republic Act 7601 or the Special Protection of Children Against Child Abuse, Exploitation and Discrimination Act, "no child shall be deprived of formal or non-formal education."

The Department of Education has a list of parents who failed to enroll their children in school. The Department of Education has a list of parents who failed to enroll their children in school.

Lack of data heightens Japan's nuclear crisis

TOYO—Nearly one month after Japan's devastating nuclear accident, atomic energy experts, regulators and politicians around the world are still puzzling over a basic question: how much danger could spread from the Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant?

This depends on a crucial, little-known fact on how far the contaminated water in the plant's cooling system, and whether that has escaped its containment, might still flow. But, unfortunately little is known for now about what is really happening inside the reactor because some areas remain too hot to touch for human approach, and some instruments have malfunctioned.

The gravity of data and the conflicting estimates of what the worst-case scenario could be have prompted a variety of conflicting analyses and a rift of 18 between officials in Japanese government, says and even between some members of Congress and the U.S. House of Representatives.

Earlier this week, the administration speculated that the crisis had to the state of one of the worst nuclear accidents in the world, but that it was not likely to reach that point. It said that the plant would not produce waste, so no major evacuation would be required. The government also said that the plant would not produce waste, so no major evacuation would be required.

The Japanese officials said there was no evidence of a containment breach, and they said they were reading about this in newspapers.

Nuclear fuel link

"If they have a concern, they should inform us," said Kenji Maeda, a spokesman for Japan's nuclear regulatory body, the Nuclear and Industrial Safety Agency, after the American emergency response of the plant over a possible nuclear fuel link at the plant's No. 2 reactor, clearly confirms that the plant is leaking.

The plant's No. 2 reactor is leaking, and it is leaking. The plant's No. 2 reactor is leaking, and it is leaking. The plant's No. 2 reactor is leaking, and it is leaking.

When it comes to the risk of a nuclear accident, the world is still in the dark.

Helping Hands Supporting JAPAN

Helping Hands and Hearts Foundation, together with Partners, Evangelists, Laymen, Women, Relief Center and Relief Relief Team (MRT), launched Supporting JAPAN on April 4, 2011. The campaign, a 30-day relief project, aims to help tsunami victims in Japan, only for all Filipinos to show their solidarity and support to Japan.

Now, it is our turn to help. All the partners of Helping Hands and Hearts Foundation will accept donations for Japan Tsunami Relief Project until April 30, 2011.

Syria rocked by largest, bloodiest protests to date

CAIRO—Dozens of communities across Syria erupted in protest on Friday in what activists said were by far the largest and bloodiest demonstrations against the iron rule of President Bashar al-Assad.

Opposition leaders said the protests numbered in the hundreds of thousands. While that number could not be independently confirmed, the size of the protests and their location—scattered across the country—suggested a new level of defiance and organization.

In the southern city of Hama, where the protests began three weeks ago after a group of teenagers demonstrated against the ruling government, a Syrian human rights activist said 21 deaths had been confirmed, but that figure was likely to rise. The opposition activists said the death toll was as high as 100.

The Interior Ministry reported that armed groups had fired on security forces in Hama, killing 19 police officers and members of security forces, in addition to several civilians, the government news agency Sana reported. It was the first substantial claim of deaths made by the government since the protests began.

The numbers of dead on either side were difficult to verify. Foreign news media have not been permitted to travel outside Damascus, the capital, and some security forces have conducted air strikes and snipers have been seen in some towns.

There were also reports on Friday in Hama, in a suburb where at least 15 protesters were killed by security forces, but activists and in Hama were not seen.

Last-minute budget deal averts shutdown of US government

WASHINGTON—Congressional leaders and President Barack Obama agreed on a last-minute deal to avert a shutdown of the government with just hours to spare on Friday night, ending a crisis that threatened to shut down the federal government.

After days of tense negotiations and political maneuvering, House Republicans agreed to a preliminary version of the bill that would extend the government's funding through the end of the fiscal year.

Speaker John Boehner, who had pressed Democrats for cuts to the federal budget, said that the bill was a "last-minute deal" to avert a shutdown of the government.

The bill would extend the government's funding through the end of the fiscal year, and it would also extend the government's funding through the end of the fiscal year.

Inquirer hosts PR Institute debut

THE PHILIPPINE Daily Inquirer will have the debut offering of the Public Relations Institute on April 23. Public relations is the art of managing the flow of information between an organization and its public. The PR Institute will be the industry's only local training center for public relations professionals in the country.

"The value of public relations goes beyond mere promotion; it is an integral part of an organization's strategy to succeed in today's competitive market," says the Inquirer's Managing Director, Mr. [Name]. "This institute will provide the necessary skills and knowledge for professionals to excel in their field."

The institute is a joint venture between the Inquirer and the Philippine Public Relations Institute (PPRI). It will offer a variety of courses, including a 12-week diploma program and a 6-month bachelor's degree program. The courses will be taught by experienced professionals from the industry and academia.

For more information, visit www.inquirerpr.com.

The institute will also include a series of seminars and workshops. The first seminar, titled "The Fundamentals of Public Relations," will be held on April 23. It will cover the basics of PR, including the importance of media relations, crisis management, and corporate social responsibility.

The institute is expected to attract a large number of students, particularly from the business and media sectors. It will also offer a variety of career opportunities for graduates, including positions in public relations, media, and corporate communications.

The institute is a testament to the Inquirer's commitment to excellence in journalism and public relations. It will provide a valuable resource for professionals in the field and contribute to the growth of the industry in the Philippines.

The economic benefits of green IT

ECONOMY: The last decade, growing concern over the global environment and the depletion of natural resources has led to a growing emphasis on sustainable development. One of the most significant areas of focus has been green IT, which aims to reduce the environmental impact of information technology.

Green IT is not just about reducing energy consumption and minimizing waste. It also involves using sustainable materials and practices in the production and disposal of IT equipment. By adopting green IT practices, businesses can reduce their carbon footprint and save money on energy and waste disposal costs.

For more information, visit www.greenit.org.

By adopting green IT practices, businesses can reduce their carbon footprint and save money on energy and waste disposal costs. Green IT is a win-win situation for both the environment and the bottom line.

Businesses can also benefit from green IT by improving their operational efficiency and reducing their risk of environmental damage. By using energy-efficient equipment and practices, businesses can reduce their energy costs and avoid the risk of fines and penalties for environmental violations.

The blessings of being 90

'Something future generations can look back to as the first step in a long, beautiful and meaningful journey'

IT'S A BLESSING to make it to 90. It's an even bigger blessing to make it to 90 with your family and other loved ones by your side, greeting each new day. But the biggest blessing of all is to make it to 90, with your family and loved ones, and have the special opportunity to give back to society in the hope that you can still make the world a better place.

At Eastwood Mall's Eastwood City Walk, it is the great place to see. Featuring 16 low-rise, five-story, the postcard of the country's biggest luxury retail store and high-end multi-chain restaurant, the facility by using one to market visitors the dry-goods section of the redevelopment Plaza Market. The Eastwood Mall's Group of Companies donated P12 million to the ongoing Plaza Market Redevelopment Project. The specialty product dry-goods section is the first to be completed in the project.

The April 7 inauguration was led by President Aquino. But apart from the presence of the President, what most have gladdened the heart of this widowed was the presence of his six children and 22 grand-children. That the 22 grand-children—many of them babies, toddlers—were brought to the celebration, the venue would have been overly packed.

Among them were his children Rian and with Neta, Rudy, Marlon, Marlon, Marlon and Marlon, and so were his grand-children led by Thelma, Anne, Tony, each of whom holds key positions to the Group's companies.

The atmosphere not only looked well, but was also strong enough to soothe with guests. He came to the celebration on

Good morning, Ho Chi Minh City

The city formerly known as Saigon has become a favorite of Filipino shoppers for its storied, tumultuous past

Text and photos by Alex T. Vargas

IF THE SLUGGISH traffic in the narrow streets of Metro Manila is beginning to drive you crazy, wait until you step in the streets of Ho Chi Minh City.

Still largely unknown to most Filipinos as Saigon, its former name, the city of more than nine million people boasts of the widest motorways cutting down its heartland and into the city.

For those who visit mostly to be seen, don't end on the busy streets crossing streets, as the popular mode of transportation seems to pop up out of nowhere from virtually everywhere.

Instead, head to the "motor scooters," as the locals call them, with children sitting either on improvised high chairs placed in front of their saddles or wedged between their parents and bigger siblings, are a common sight.

Of course not. I was off-camera about the way I looked. I felt overweight and I grew up in a place where the important things were to good or football or fighting. If you're not good at either of those things, you're not the most interesting. Being funny or having a popular perspective, there are not valuable commodities in Gwyn. Even if you are a bit, I just have a tendency toward addiction and consuming things. I just loved chocolate. I was lonely. My mom was sick and that so I got really consuming. Then, when I reached sexual awakening and became very body conscious, I thought, I don't want to be like this anymore. There was a certain reluctance to the behavior. I read the column at magazine.35000@yahoo.com

Transforming Passion into Excellence

B&M Global Services Manila, Inc.

EXPLORE OUR WORLD

We can help expand your fluency and reach

B&M Global Services Manila provides business and knowledge support services to leading law offices in 40 countries — and to their clients, many of whom are the world's largest multinationals. Explore a rewarding career with us as a member of our Asia-Pacific Business Development Unit.

Business Development Coordinators (3)

The person hired for this role will be part of and coordinate closely with a multidisciplinary team that supports and implements business development and marketing initiatives across Asia Pacific. Responsibilities will include preparing well-researched market intelligence reports, brochures and capability statements, coordinating internal and external events, and maintaining relevant pages and desktops. He/she will assist with budget administration, financial reporting, document editing, and in the preparation of business plans and client presentations. The role requires:

- Bachelor's degree in Marketing, Business, Management or a related field
- Three or more years of professional experience in marketing, events management, and/or business/industry research
- Advanced proficiency in Microsoft, MS Power Point and MS Excel
- Excellent English communication skills (verbal and written)
- Ability to prioritize tasks, manage multiple responsibilities, and meet deadlines and deliverables
- Experience working in a legal or related professional services environment is preferred, but not essential

Interested applicants may send their resume to bmco@bmservicesmanila.com on or before April 28, 2011.

B&M Global Services Manila, Inc., is a subsidiary of Baker & McKenzie International U.S.A., a support services provider to Baker & McKenzie International, a Texas-based law firm, and is a member of the Baker & McKenzie International U.S.A. network of law offices in 40 countries.

Australian Government Aid Program

MINDANAO CONFLICT AFFECTED AREAS SPECIALIST

The Australian Agency for International Development (AusAID), responsible for the delivery of one of the largest AID programs in the Philippines - Australia's Development Cooperation Program, is looking for an experienced, results-oriented and innovative person to fill the position of a Mindanao Conflict-Affected Areas Specialist (MCAAS).

The Specialist will assist senior sectoral teams in AusAID to contribute to the efficient and effective delivery of AusAID activities in conflict affected areas of Mindanao, and contribute to identifying, design and review of various initiatives, as well as with AusAID's research agenda.

Eligibility/Other requirements

This position requires relevant academic qualifications, master or higher level in a development related field. Deep knowledge of the issues and challenges of Mindanao, particularly of conflict affected areas is essential.

Applications are invited from suitably qualified persons, with Philippine nationalities encouraged to apply. Please note that this is a full time position, neither an Overseas Based nor Australian Public Service position. Further details on Terms of Reference and selection criteria for this position can be accessed under job vacancies of the website: http://www.austlii.edu.au/other/dfat/specialists/australianaid/australianaid.htm

Conditions of Contract

The position is full time for an initial period of eighteen (18) months, and is expected to spend significant amount of time in both Manila and in various parts of Mindanao. The successful candidate is expected to commence as soon as possible. Consultant fee is negotiable depending upon qualifications and experience.

Expressions of Interest

Interested applicants must address the selection criteria (shown on page 2), and detail capability to perform the duties of the position including personal qualities, experience, skills and knowledge. All applications should be forwarded to HR Manager, Development Cooperation Section, Australian Embassy, G/F Tower 2, NCBG Plaza, 8818 Ayala Avenue, Makati City 1206 or Manila@hrmanager@dfat.gov.au on or before Monday, 2 May 2011. Please include in your application a curriculum vitae of no more than 3 pages. Written interview reports are not required to be submitted at the time of application, although applicants should ensure that the names and contact details of two (2) recommended referees are supplied. Do not send copies of academic transcripts, awards, degrees, or published papers. Late or incomplete applications will not be considered.

Resumes should be clearly marked "MCAAS/MSMD". Due to the volume of applications, only shortlisted applicants for interview will have their applications and resumes.

GE grid expert: Smart grid technologies reduce number of customers affected by power outages

ALTHOUGH the reliance on infrastructure technology like to roll on the power in theory, the electric utilities in particular, the operators, transmission and risk management of the grid becomes more complex. Fortunately, GE Smart Grid, or the integration of making grids and the information technologies with traditional transmission and distribution equipment, provides electric utilities with the tools to manage the assets towards a more robust and reliable service for customers.

GE Energy has always been in the forefront in providing power generation and delivery technology. As requesting portfolio of innovative products and services continue to create a positive impact among industries and the general public as well.

Managing the transmission and distributed power resources generated by systems is a great challenge for the utility industry," said Luke Conner, general manager, marketing and selling remote digital energy for GE Energy Systems. "As industry leaders, we are committed to the lighter side of the country, we are committed to the broader impact that a smarter grid can have on customers. In a smart grid solution can reduce the number of customers affected by power outages and minimize the impact of outages that do occur by getting power online quickly after an outage."

John Hines, GE Energy country executive for Philippines/Asian Asia, "We know the case, in the past that the smart grid will ensure of power systems will a new way called to report them, faster grid technologies substantially benefit utilities of outages and provide stability in the grid assets, allowing operators to isolate distributed portions of the grid and to deliver power around damages from keeping them from being damaged. These smart grid assets can be used to monitor the status of the grid and to detect and respond to faults. With utility operations to detect faults, smart grid assets and equipment can be used to detect faults and respond to faults.

With the current global concern on energy efficiency and management, GE Energy can be a powerful tool into making a difference in the Philippines market. GE Energy's commitment of providing a new energy service as an integral part of the company's commitment initiative that provides integrated solutions to industry's environmental challenges.
